Category of Scheme: Small cap Fund

Investment Objective: To generate capital appreciation by investing predominantly in Small Cap stocks. However, there can be no assurance that the investment objective of the scheme will be realized.

The fund manager informed Trustees that the Fund has outperformed than it's benchmark during the period under review by focusing on quality small-cap securities that were available at attractive valuations. Its sustaining performance was driven by investments in companies with healthy fundamentals and early positioning in sectors poised to benefit from the cyclical market recovery. The fund's strategic stock selection and participation in emerging growth opportunities contributed meaningfully to its strong returns.

36. Motilal Oswal Large Cap Fund

Type of the Scheme: An open-ended equity scheme predominantly investing in large cap stocks.

Category of Scheme: Large cap Fund

Investment Objective: To achieve long term capital appreciation by predominantly investing in equity and equity related instruments of large cap companies. However, there is no assurance that the investment objective of the Scheme will be achieved.

The Fund Manager has submitted its rationale to the Trustees, stating that the scheme's relative underperformance reflects an approximate 1% shortfall against the benchmark over the one-year period, a gap that has since reversed, with performance currently turning positive. It was further stated that, since inception, the strategy has delivered a substantial outperformance of approximately 7% CAGR over the benchmark, and that, as with any actively managed strategy, short-term performance may vary on account of prevailing market conditions. The Trustees, having considered the above, note that the portfolio continues to be managed with a long-term investment horizon and remains focused on delivering sustained outperformance across market cycles, and place the same before the Investors for their information and record.

Category of Scheme: Multi cap Fund

Investment Objective: To achieve long term capital appreciation by predominantly investing in equity and equity related instruments of large, mid and small cap companies. However, there can be no assurance that the investment objective of the scheme will be realized.

The Trustees have been apprised by the Fund Manager that the underperformance of the Multicap strategy was primarily attributable to its overweight allocation to the IT sector, which underperformed during the period, coupled with an underweight position in the commodity sector. The Fund Manager has further represented that the portfolio's relatively lower exposure to the BFSI sector also weighed on performance. It was stated that, recognizing the evolving market dynamics, the Fund Manager has undertaken a comprehensive realignment of the portfolio over the past six months by recalibrating sector allocations, including reducing exposure to IT while increasing allocations to BFSI and select discretionary businesses. The Fund Manager has represented that these strategic adjustments are intended to better position the portfolio to capture emerging opportunities and support improved performance over the medium to long term. The above has been placed before the Investors for their information

Category of Scheme: Thematic Fund

Investment Objective: To achieve long term capital appreciation by predominantly investing in equity and equity related instruments of companies engaged in the manufacturing activity. However, there can be no assurance that the investment objective of the scheme will be realized.

The Fund Manager has submitted its rationale to the Trustees, stating that the underperformance of the Manufacturing Fund was primarily attributable to its relatively lower exposure to automobile companies and metal sector stocks, both of which outperformed during the period. It was further stated that the portfolio positioning has since been realigned to address these sectoral gaps, resulting in a partial recovery in performance, and that, based on the current portfolio composition and investment outlook, the Fund Manager expects the existing holdings to progressively contribute to performance recovery over the upcoming quarter of FY 2026–2027. The Trustees, having considered the above, place the same before the Investors for their information and record.

However, there can be no assurance that the investment objective of the scheme will be realized.

The Trustees have been apprised by the Fund Manager that the investment strategy is driven by a quantitative model that systematically identifies investment opportunities based on predefined parameters and data-driven analysis. The Fund Manager has further represented that, as the portfolio construction and security selection are guided by the model rather than discretionary decision-making, short-term performance may vary depending on prevailing market conditions and factor cycles. It was also stated that the strategy is designed with a long-term investment horizon, and that the Fund Manager expects the quantitative model to generate consistent outperformance over a full market cycle by adapting to evolving market dynamics and maintaining disciplined portfolio construction. The Fund Manager has submitted its rationale to the Trustees, stating that the underperformance was attributable to the AI narrative globally, which impacted valuations across the board, including growth stocks. It was further stated that the impact on valuations of growth stocks is gradually reversing with the sustained performance of growth companies, and that the benefits of the same were visible in the month of April, with a strong rebound in fund performance. The Trustees, having considered the above, place the same before the Investors for their information and record.

However, there can be no assurance that the investment objective of the scheme will be realized.

The Trustees have been apprised by the Fund Manager that the Fund had become concentrated with higher exposure to IT services, which hurt performance on account of the AI narrative globally impacting valuations. The Fund Manager has further represented that the Fund also had higher exposure to large banks, where performance was weaker due to idiosyncratic reasons. It was also stated that the Fund is now undergoing a change towards being more diversified and less concentrated than earlier, with an expansion into sub-sectors where growth is strong. The fund manager reasoned that the under-performance during the review period was impacted by the decline in bond yields, which affected returns during the period. In addition, stock roll levels were lower than in the previous month, limiting the opportunity to generate incremental carry from roll-down strategies. This reduction in stock roll levels is considered temporary, and as market conditions normalize, the roll levels are expected to improve over the next three months, which should support a recovery in performance.

45. Motilal Oswal Balanced Advantage Fund:

Type of the Scheme: An open ended dynamic asset allocation fund

During the transition period, the portfolio experienced some near-term performance pressure, partly due to elevated cash levels maintained in light of prevailing macroeconomic conditions. The Fund Manager assured that the scheme has been progressively deploying the cash and implementing the revised investment strategy. The fund manager has already overseen a meaningful recovery in portfolio performance following the restructuring and remains focused on delivering sustained long-term performance.

FUTURE OUTLOOK OF THE FUND

- The first half of 2026 was defined by elevated macroeconomic and geopolitical uncertainty. However, the global expansion is on solid footing due to improving business sentiment and a resilient consumer. For the rest of 2026, the three core themes for major equity markets would be navigating geopolitical tensions, AI Upstream to be a growth pillar, geopolitical fragmentation will persist as a structural source of uncertainty across macro and markets
- Foremost risk is of a resurgence of conflict that prompts a sharp rise in energy prices. At the same time, the headwind from Western Europe's recent sentiment slide and China's continued reliance on exports highlight the potential for divergent regional outcomes.
- On the whole, global core inflation is forecast to remain sticky this year — close to its 3% average over 2024–2025. This is especially as new core goods price pressures have emerged as a result of firming demand, supply chain bottlenecks in the tech sector and the energy price pass-through.
- A hawkish global policy mix should keep DM (Developed Market) and U.S. yields buoyed at higher levels than prevailed pre-conflict. However, the process of agreeing to a longer-term peace framework could be protracted and the indirect impact of the spike in energy prices over the spring should still push inflation higher
- So far, most emerging markets (EM) have withstood the energy shock better than expected, though the inflationary impulse has led to a sharp repricing of central banks' outlooks. Already, some central banks across EM are tilting more hawkish as price pressures continue to build. As we enter the second half of 2026, the reflationary backdrop might persist, with heightened risks from U.S. rates repricing — even as the grip of oil prices on EM markets likely wanes.
- The war confronts policymakers with difficult trade-offs among containing inflation, supporting activity, and protecting vulnerable households. Meanwhile, strong AI-driven activity exerts additional upward pressure on prices but sustains consumption in the short term, while exposing the financial system to greater risk of instability. The policy task is to manage the immediate impact of the current shocks while building robustness to the different ways these and future shocks may unfold. This calls for country-specific responses—reflecting differences in inflation dynamics, fiscal space, and financial vulnerabilities—alongside renewed international cooperation.
- Indian Markets: The month of June saw crude retrace back to below USD80/bbl, a level which is sustainable for an economy like India. However, while prospects of an agreement between Iran and the US are high, the agreement still needs to happen and Strait of Hormuz needs to stay open.
- This year monsoons are delayed and temperatures have risen to record levels in many parts of the country. This has increased demand for cooling appliances and the power to run them. Power demand has grown at a fast clip. Peak electricity demand hit an all-time high of 270.8 GW in May
- There is a silver lining to delayed monsoons. Economic activity may continue at relatively higher level. Monsoons dampen construction, mining, and power demand. GDP growth can be affected by such seasonal factors. This year it is the opposite and we may expect to see relatively higher GDP numbers over the next quarter, provided monsoon don't completely fail. This may support government incomes also. Inflation again, on lower monsoons and INR depreciation, is a tailwind on profits and government finances.
- One reason for strong FPI selling was continuous INR depreciation. INR depreciation may have run its course after the rollout of NRI deposit scheme which should result in strong inflows of USD. Also, as oil drops, the stress on forex on high oil prices would subside. A stable to strengthening INR may be a factor considered by foreign investors while evaluating Indian assets again.
- Indian equities have been amongst the worst performing asset class of past year and half. During this period, earnings have continued to move up and outlook remains supported by factors such as weaker INR and inflation apart from volume growth. Valuation has corrected and our premium to emerging market equities is at a 10-year low. Banks and IT, two dominant spaces in the large cap indices have seen a strong correction and while we may prefer spaces delivering stronger growth.
- Valuations may provide support to large cap indices, though market movements will depend on multiple factors. For relatively stronger performance, supply of paper should also be kept in focus. Unlike last year when mid and small caps saw a strong equity issuance, this time around, large caps are raising funds.

Swing Pricing

Swing pricing refers to a process for adjusting a scheme's Net Asset Value (NAV) to effectively pass on transaction costs stemming from significant net capital activity (i.e., flows into or out of the fund) to the investors associated with that activity. It is aimed at reducing the impact of large redemptions on existing investors by reducing dilution of the value of a fund's units. Swing pricing is needed to address issues in addition to costs of bid-offer spread and transaction costs, particularly arising during market dislocation in the mutual fund industry or in the underlying bond market. Further, liquidity is concentrated in high quality and during market dislocation, very high risk aversion is observed and in terms of yield of bonds, spread over benchmark spike, particularly for relatively lower quality paper. Accordingly, swing pricing, an anti-dilution adjustment that seeks to protect investors in a fund from performance dilution as a result of significant outflows from the fund, particularly during market dislocation.

During the period under review, Swing pricing framework was not applicable to the Schemes of Motilal Oswal Mutual Fund.

- To outline the role and obligations of Mutual Fund in ensuring better corporate governance of listed companies in which the funds of Schemes of Mutual Fund are invested.
- To exercise voting responsibilities at the general meetings of Investee Companies in the best interest of the unit holders of the Mutual Fund.
- To explain reporting and disclosure requirements with regards to proxy voting.

The principles and positions reflected in this policy are designed to guide us in exercising our votes with respect to the shares and not necessarily in making investment decisions. The Fund Managers of each of the schemes of the Mutual Fund base their determinations of whether their respective schemes should invest in the shares of particular company on a variety of factors at all times keeping paramount the best interests of the unit holders of such scheme, and while corporate governance may be one such factor, it may not be the most important consideration.

Mechanism of Voting

MOAMC for and on behalf of the Mutual Fund shall endeavour to vote on all ordinary/special resolutions which may affect the unit holders interests, either by postal ballot, electronic mode or through personal attendance by any of the authorized officials / agents.

Use of Proxy Advisory Services

MOAMC may at its discretion avail the services of proxy advisors for getting in depth analyses of proposals and their voting recommendation. MOAMC shall not be bound by the proxy advisors recommendations. The final decision in case of voting on proposal would be taken by MOAMC.

Policy Guidelines

MOAMC shall adhere to the following guidelines:

- This Policy will be effective for all listed companies, wherein equity schemes of Mutual Fund have invested.
- MOAMC may authorize any of its officials, Head-Operations, concerned Fund Manager, Compliance Officer, or any other Officers of the rank of Manager and above, who is authorised from Corporate Office/Branch Offices and / or authorised agents to attend the meeting in person and to vote as approved internally.
- MOAMC shall not give proxy to brokers, for voting on its behalf.
- The decision regarding the voting on the resolution, i.e. whether the Mutual Fund will vote for or against the proposed resolution by the Investee Company/Issuer will be taken by the Investment team depending upon material impact on shareholders' value or the interest of the unit holders.

The actual exercise of the proxy votes in the AGMs/EGMs of the Investee Company will cover the following matters and will be reported in the SEBI prescribed format:

A. Ordinary Business:

a. Adopting the Annual Accounts (P&L & Balance Sheet)

b. Declaration of Annual or Interim or Final or Special Dividend

c. Appointment or removal or retirement of Directors

d. Appointment or Re-appointment of Auditors

B. Special Business

Corporate governance issues are diverse and continually evolving. While it is difficult to provide an exhaustive list of such issues, the following guidelines/policies reflect what MOAMC believes to be good corporate governance measures and the stance it may generally take with respect to the below matters:

i. Corporate Governance Matters

MOAMC supports resolutions like change in registered office of the Company from one State to another State, merger and other corporate restructuring, which are in the interest of the unit holders of the Fund. MOAMC will analyze various economic and strategic factors in making the final decision on a merger, acquisition or any other corporate restructuring proposals. However, MOAMC will vote against resolutions pertaining to takeover by an acquirer, etc. which are against the interest of the unit holders. MOAMC will consider, on a case to case basis, proposals to rotate auditors, and will vote against the appointment of auditors when there is convincing evidence of accounting irregularities or negligence.

ii. Changes to Capital Structure

Changes in capitalization will generally be supported where a reasonable need for the change is demonstrated. MOAMC will review on a case to case basis, proposals by companies to change the capital structure by increasing/decreasing the authorized shares and the purpose for the same. MOAMC believes that a company's decisions pertaining to financing has a material impact on its shareholders, in particular when they involve the issuance of additional shares or the assumption of additional debt. However such changes resulting in excessive dilution of existing shareholder value will not be supported.

iii. Stock option plans and other proposals pertaining to management compensation

MOAMC would support such remuneration proposals, which are tied to achieving long-term performance and enhancing shareholder value. Stock option plans that are excessively generous or dilute other shareholders' stake value will not be supported.

iv. Social and corporate responsibility issues

In light of the increasing need for fair disclosures, a growing need for social and corporate responsibility, MOAMC's responsibility increases. MOAMC shall vote in favor of such matters which are believed to have significant socio-economic benefits.

v. Board of Directors

MOAMC believes in philosophy of having an independent board of directors as the same is key to comply with good corporate governance norms. MOAMC would support proposals pertaining to appointment of independent directors, and the key committees such as audit, IPO, CSR and remuneration committees etc. to be comprised of independent members.

vi. Related-party transactions

In view of the increasing number of incidences of related-party transactions being seen in the corporate sector today which can have large-scale implications on the future of the underlying business of the Investee company and its valuation, MOAMC will ensure its active participation in voting on such transactions to safeguard the interest of its unit holders.

vii. Any other issue that may affect the interest of the shareholders in general and interest of the Unit holder in particular.

C. Conflict of Interest

Investment in group companies of MOAMC and investment in companies that have subscribed to the units of schemes of Mutual Fund:

In cases where investments are in group companies of the MOAMC or where the Investee Companies have substantial investments in the schemes of the Motilal Oswal Mutual Fund, MOAMC shall specifically review all voting proposals and take decisions with respect to voting on such proposals in the best interest of the unit holders.

Exception to the above

Although MOAMC will vote in accordance with the Voting Policy, but it may act differently if, the relevant facts and circumstances so warrant. Hence, MOAMC may deviate from the Voting Policy guidelines when it determines that the deviation is necessary to protect the interests of the unit holders.

Due to the constantly evolving nature of investee company practices and other circumstances, it is important to note that it may not be possible to identify or address pre-emptively all material or potential risks, although best endeavors will be exercised.

Key areas of monitoring include remuneration, independent and effective boards, environmental and operational risks, and shareholder rights.

The level of intervention with investee companies' management may vary, depending on a number of factors, including the size of the investment in the company, the size of the company, its location and its business activities.

The investment team may decide to intervene if the investment in the company is above the threshold level. However, the Investment team could decide to intervene in companies where the investment is below threshold level, depending on the seriousness of the issue.

The Investment team shall communicate to the investee company's management about any concerns of the company including steps to be taken to mitigate their concerns.

If concerns regarding an investee company's approach or decisions arise, initial discussions would, if appropriate, take place on a confidential basis with a view to resolve the issue constructively and where possible as part of the fund manager's ongoing dialogue.

If dissatisfied with the response of the investee company, fund manager post discussion with Investment Committee may escalate the matter to the Board of Directors of the Investee Company. The fund manager may also consider discussing the issues at the general meeting of the investee company.

If there is no response or action taken by the investee company despite the efforts, MOAMC may approach the relevant authorities governing the investing company.

In case MOAMC intervention is not successful (either fully or partially), it will not automatically result in the exit of investment in the investee company. The decision to purchase more equity or sell all or part of the total investment in the investee company will be made by the Fund Manager keeping Investment Committee informed with rationale.

Collaboration with other institutional investors

The Company may choose to engage with the investee company through consultations with other institutional investors as for the issues that require larger engagement with the investee company.

In circumstances where the Company's approach to engage with management of investee company is not achieving the required level of discussion or success or where unitholders interests is at risk to a sufficient degree, the Company may act in conjunction with other investors. For such situations, other investors or formal or informal groups, as appropriate, may be consulted.

The decision to collaborate on company specific matters will be judged on a case by case basis and only when we believe collaborative actions would be an effective means by which investors can exercise appropriate influence.

Further, the act of collaboration with other institutional investors shall not be deemed to be an act of collusion or persons acting in concert.
